AS LONG AS I LIVE

By Ione Sandberg Shriver © BY IONE SANDBERG SHRIVER, DISTRIBUTED BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Ann Bancroft—Mrs. Rush Bancroft—suddenly becomes terrified. Someone has waxed the soles of her new brown pumps. Someone who evidently wants her to slip and fall down the steep staircase at Tophill. Ann discovers the can of wax in her closet. She is too upset to go along with Laurie and Rinda to the country club for lunch. Laurie is Ann's 15-year-old sister. Rinda is Ann's college roommate, now visiting the Bancrofts. Ann's fright increases when she gets a letter from a Mr. Stark about work done on the swinging bridge over the ravine in the garden. The workman writes that the bridge was in perfect condition on May 23. But on May 30 the bridge collapsed, carrying Luke the gardener to his death. Ann wonders if the "accident" was meant to kill, not Luke, but Ann.

III

Dorinda Bruce came to Tophill two days before Decoration Day. Ann was delighted at the prospect of the visit; she hadn't seen Rinda since college. From the first Rinda loved Tophill. She loved the old manorosity of a house, the magnificent old door bang and heels click rapidly across the parquet floor.

It was Gay Linforth, Rush's laboratory assistant. She stopped abruptly and breathlessly in the doorway, her pale hair flying, her blue eyes shining, her whole face alive and eager.

"Oh, I'm so sorry!" she said as her eyes took in the group. "Come on in," Ann invited. "Come in and meet Rinda. And have a cup of tea."

"Oh, I can't! How do you do, Miss Bruce? Everyone's been looking forward to having you come. But I really can't stop for the tea." She turned to Rush who was leaning indolently against the high mantel, watching her; her face got a little brighter and certainly her voice was even more breathless as she said, "It just came, special delivery, Rush, and we were right!"

Sit down, Gay. Have some tea. I've never seen you so excited. He put down his pipe and went to Ann and got a cup of tea for Gay, settled her in a chair by the fireplace. "Now relax."

"But the spores formation—" she began and he laughed again and said, "Will you certainly keep enough for you to have a cup of tea. Go on, drink it."

"But it's so exciting to know we were right," Gay said and then began obediently to drink her tea. As Ann remembered it was about then that Rush suggested the picnic. And Rinda said instantly, "Swimming! On Decoration Day! Brhhh."

"You don't know our pool," Rush told her. "Hot and cold running water. All the comforts of home. How about it, Gay?" His smile at her was warm. "No work day after tomorrow, you know."

"I'd love to," Gay replied immediately. "Your picnics are always wonderful." She put her plate down and stood up, said firmly, "I've got to go now. Thanks for the tea. I've still got over an hour's work to do." Her blue eyes turned on Rush. "You'll come over to the lab before dinner?" She turned apologetically to Rinda and said, "I don't mean to be rude but I'm so excited! The aerobic specimen that we sent."

"Gay! Gay!" Rush deplored laughing, taking her elbow and turning her around toward the door, steering her in its direction. "No professional talk! Rinda and Ann will be completely baffled. Sure, I'll come over. In a little while."

"She's an attractive wench," Rinda said from the depths of her chair, after Gay had gone. "She's a glutton for punishment," Ann said. "She's a glutton for more than that," Laurie said significantly. "She's been working since 7:30 this morning," Ann said quietly. "She's doing it for Rush," Laurie said, her voice light and teasing. "Gay's very thoughtful of Rush, darling. Haven't you heard?"

"Well, I'm sure it's very nice of her," Ann said but she was troubled by the edge of malice in Laurie's voice. "I know Rush is very fond of her."

Caudle-Huckabee Wedding Announced

In a double ring ceremony at the First Methodist church Saturday at six p.m., Mrs. Dorinda Caudle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Cumble of this city, became the bride of Samuel J. Huckabee, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel J. Huckabee, Sr. of North Little Rock, Arkansas with the Reverend J. E. Cooper, pastor of the church reading the impressive ceremony.

The church was decorated with baskets of white gladioli and an arch decorated with greenery. White lighted tapers burned in seven branched candelabras. Preceding the ceremony, Howard Cumble, brother of the bride and Bill Wray of Little Rock lighted the candles.

Miss Agnes Parks of Conway, organist, and Miss Colleen Coffee, soloist, rendered the nuptial music. Miss Coffee sang "Always" and "I Love You Truly."

The bride who entered alone was lovely in an afternoon dress of aqua crepe with black accessories. Her colonial bouquet was of pink carnations with white satin streamers.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Charles Fricks, sister of the bride wore a dark green dressmaker suit with most accessories. Her corsage was of yellow carnations.

Charles Fricks served the groom as best man and ushers were Jake Leggett and Douglas Hogue of Little Rock.

Immediately following the ceremony, the couple left for a short wedding trip and which they will make their home at 1003 West 6th St. here.

DOROTHY DIX

Leap Year Is Girl's Chance

Dear Miss Dix: There is a man with whom I am associated in business. We are both in our middle forties. We have the same education, personalities, social standards, about the same amount of property and we also do the same type of work. Neither of us ever has been married. We frequently go out together and enjoy each other's society greatly.

The question is: Would it be proper for me to suggest marriage, so we could be together and enjoy having a good home? The problem is up to me, for I know he never will propose. I feel that we would be very congenial and happy.

SALLY ANNE

Answer: It is Leap Year, Sally Anne, and that gives you a chance. Take it. Pop the question and the chances are dollars to doughnuts that he will say YES. Many a man is a lonely old bachelor simply because he was too shy ever to ask the girl he wanted to marry him. He couldn't summon up courage to tell Sally Anne or Mary Jane or whatever her name was how much he loved her and wanted her, and he hung around and hung around without ever coming to the point. And she waited for him to speak until she got tired and discouraged and married somebody else.

Women No Longer Timid

Anyway, women are not the timid creatures now that they used to be. When they want a thing they go after it. They don't waste their time in wishful waiting. So if you love this man and are pretty sure that he loves you, and both of you are at an age when you want to settle down and have a home of your own, why, I think you would be perfectly silly not to take advantage of your Leap Year privilege.

Dear Dorothy Dix: My boy friend is overseas and will be home very soon. This is my problem. Will he be changed, as people tell me, after his long absence? It has been two years since we have been together, but we write often and I have dated no other boys. I am 17 and Joe is 19.

Answer: Of course, your boy friend will be changed after two years in the army in a foreign country, where everything has been new and different to him and where all his habits and tastes will have altered. Every soldier who was in the war came back a changed man, and that is what has brought about the thousands and thousands of unhappy marriages and divorces that are wrecking so many lives.

No one is to blame for it. It is just life. The boy was no longer a boy. He was a man who had outgrown his wife or his sweetheart. He had seen the world. He had faced death and suffering. And the things that once satisfied him, satisfied him no longer. And the girls had changed, too.

Between 15 and 17 years of age there is a gap that takes time to bridge. So you are a wise child in sensing this and realizing that you and the boy friend will have to get acquainted all over again and see whether you want to scrap your childhood romance or not. My earnest advice to you is not to marry in haste. Take time to think it all over.

Dear Dorothy Dix: My wife died a few months ago, leaving me with three children whom I am trying my best to rear properly. My chief problem is my daughter. She is 15½ years old and does not learn readily. All through grade school she had a hard time mastering her studies and I have to help her every night, with her high school work, but she fails in every test and examination. She tries so hard to learn and is so willing, and the harder she tries the less she seems to accomplish. She is studying music and slowly is making headway. She is very anxious to quit high school and go to work in a department store where a friend of ours, who is the manager of it, will get her a job and train her in the work. What do you think about it?

Answer: I think that is the ideal solution of your difficulty. If your daughter is in high school she must have gotten a fair practical education, enough to fit her to do the work she wishes. Not all people are bookish, nor does all education come out of books, and the things that your daughter will learn in business will be just as important to her as anything she could learn in school. If your girl is unhappy and bored in school, the chances are that, as she has no mother to look after her and protect her, she will be in danger of running wild and getting into bad company. By all means let your daughter take the job that is offered her. (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Cardinal Dies at the Age of 96

Vatican City, Feb. 16 — (AP) — Cardinal Granillo Pignatelli, 96, second only to Pope Pius XII in the hierarchy of the Roman Catholic church, died today of a bladder ailment complicated by old age.

Cardinal Pignatelli, who was a prince of the Italian aristocracy as well as a prince of the church, expired at 10:13 a. m. (4:13 a. m. EST) in his simply furnished apartment in the historic Vatican church of Santa Maria.

He had known five popes in his long life and had been an intimate of the present pontiff and his predecessor. He had been dean of the College of Cardinals for nearly 18 years.

Francesco Cardinal Marchetti-Selvaggiani, 76, bishop of Frascati, vicar general of Rome and archbishop of the basilica of St. John Lateran, succeeds Cardinal Pignatelli as cardinal dean. Cardinal Marchetti-Selvaggiani, a native of Rome, has been a cardinal since June 30, 1930.

Cardinal Pignatelli, bishop of Albano and Calabria, was in charge of arranging all pontifical ceremonies as prefect of the congregation of ceremonies.

Somberly robed officials of the church stood quietly in the darkened room, lit only by tall tapers, as he breathed his last.

His death reduced the membership of the College of Cardinals to 60. Pope Pius visited him last Saturday and gave him his blessing and a message of sympathy. Extreme unction also was administered Saturday. He fell into a coma last night.

Mangrum and Demaret in Golf Final

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

Harlingen, Tex., Feb. 16 — (AP) — Winning back the spotlight from a fist fight, resignations, withdrawals, rules squabbles and appointment of a "czar" to Texas, Lloyd Mangrum and Jimmy Demaret were to meet today to settle the Lower Rio Grande Valley open golf championship.

With a place paying $2,000 and second $1,400, today's winner will come up with $600 more than the loser.

Debonair Lloyd and fashion-plate Jimmy battled to a tie for first place yesterday, each registering 269 for the 72 holes. This was 15 strokes below par for the 6,455-yard Harlingen municipal course. Their play-off today is 18 holes.

Demaret, registering from Ojai, Calif., had 66-67-72-68 for the four rounds and Mangrum from Chicago, 69-65-63-73.

Clayton Heafner, from Charlotte, N. C., and Al Smith of Winston Salem, N. C., tied for third place at 270.

Kv Laffoon of St. Andrews, Ill., wound up in fifth spot with 271.

Most of the professionals left today for New Orleans where an open tournament starts Thursday. With them was George Schneider of Ogden, Utah, the new "czar" of golf.

In settling dickering among the pros over the rules of play while they were in the tournament here, the PGA members voted Schneider full authority to make all decisions with no appeal from his rulings.

At New Orleans, the field will be minus Henry Ransom of Ravinia, Ill., who has been suspended 300 two weeks by Schneider for figuring in a fist fight with N. G. Von Nida of Sydney, Australia, during the tournament's third round Saturday.

Schneider barred Ransom from play "for conduct detrimental to golf."

The rules Ruckus was marked by resignation of Lawson Little, Cleveland pro, from the Rules Committee and withdrawal of professionals Vic Ghezzi, Kansas City, and Craig Wood, New York, from the competition.

Southwest Title May Be Decided

Fayetteville, Feb. 15 — (AP) — Southwest Conference basketball games this week can either end the title race or send it into a roaring finish.

Baylor, undefeated in nine starts, already has one foot in the throne room. But Texas and Arkansas still have chances, and they'll meet at Fayetteville Friday and Saturday nights.

Baylor which has handed Arkansas' Razorbacks their only two conference defeats and Texas its only one, plays Southern Methodist at Dallas tomorrow night. Texas also has a game with Rice at Sulist tonight.

A Baylor victory over SMU and one more defeat for Texas would assure the Bears of an easy road to the championship. A Baylor victory and two setbacks for Texas will knock the Longhorns out of any chance. A Bear win and one Arkansas loss will ruin the Razorbacks' chances.

Should Baylor be upset by SMU, the race cannot possibly be decided this week.

The Bears whipped Texas 48-39 at Waco last week, but the two will meet for a second time later this month.

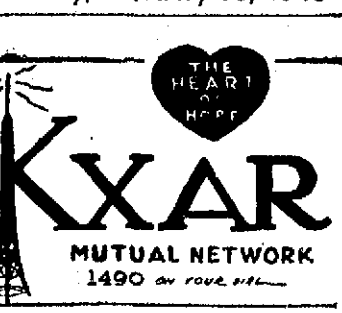

The Razorbacks tuned up for this week's meeting with Texas by handing Texas Christian a couple of setbacks 37-30 and 47-39.

In the only other game last week, Rice defeated Texas A & M 52-48. Rice invades Fort Worth Friday for a game with the cellar-dwelling Texas Christian Frogs and A & M meets Southern Methodist in Dallas the same night.

Saturday, A & M, tackles the Frogs and Rice plays the Ponies. George Kuk of Arkansas added to his lead in individual scoring last week, running his conference total to 149 and his season amount to 353.

Don Heathington's 34 points against Texas put the Baylor player in second place in conference scoring with 106 points. Al Williams of Southern Methodist is second in season scoring with 249 points.

Bryan Taylor II, 11-year-old Detroit, Mich., boy, learned of the need for religious books, catechisms and rosaries in the Far East. The lad canvassed his neighborhood, and now makes a hobby of finding and repairing old rosaries. They're sent abroad by the Far East Mission of the St. Columbian's Seminary in New York.

Our Uncle Sam is going to insist that his aid for rehabilitation of European countries shall follow the principle that help must be given to those who help themselves.

More specifically, the U. S. Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which is putting the Marshall plan into the form of a bill for Senate action, has agreed that the needy nations must do everything they can to help themselves and each other if they are to get aid from America. The 18 countries looking for help must fulfill the pledge they already have made to create a joint recovery program based on self-help and mutual cooperation.

That's fair enough. As a matter of fact it's more than fair, because self-help is the least which the United States is entitled to expect. And to give credit where it may be due the indications are that on the whole the hard-hit nations of western Europe really are making an honest effort to help themselves, and in many cases are doing a good job.

Now of course we should be naive if we didn't expect the suppliants to gather all the means they can — and with both hands. That's human nature. Furthermore there have been instances of Americans trying to substitute American largess for self-help — which also is a human quality not restricted to western Europe.

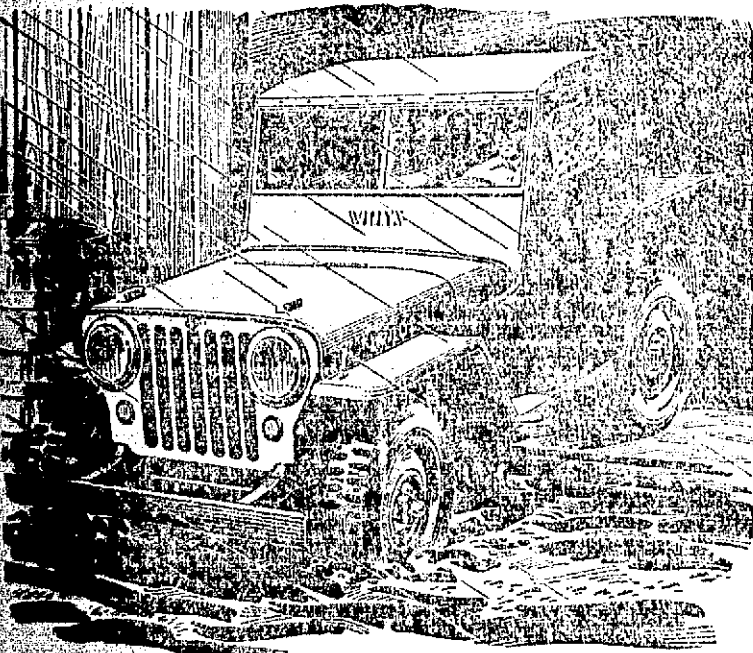

Still, we must remember that Europe has just come through an earthquake the like of which it never before has known. There has been terrific destruction of economic resources, morale in many instances has been badly hit, and on top of all that the Communists have been carrying on their work of disruption. Maybe we should make allowance for some mistakes.

It's Too Big for Its Bridges

What to do with a steel tank that turned out to be too big for any of the bridges leading to its destination only a few miles away? That's the problem facing a St. Louis, Mo., boiler works which made the huge shell pictured above. They decided that the 15 x 30-foot, 30-ton tank may have to be sealed and floated across the Mississippi for delivery to its purchaser.

Napoleon's Channel Tunnel Dream May Come True

Napoleon Bonaparte's dream of a tunnel under the English Channel may soon be a reality. Britain and France have once again started conferring on the possibility of a bomb-resistant underground tube linking the two nations. The project, as outlined by a joint commission, calls for a 28-mile tunnel between Folkestone, England, and Cape Gris Nez, France, large enough for two automobile roads and two electric train tracks. Cost is estimated at $200,000,000. Above is an artist's conception of the completed tunnel.

Arkansas Delegates in Washington

By GORDON ORLIN

Washington, Feb. 14 (AP)—Along with other Southerners, many of the Arkansas delegation in Congress have no intention of letting their civil rights rebellion die down.

The strategy, one congressman said, will be for some one to speak up every day or so and keep the issue alive in an effort to force the administration to back down or at least stop peddling its program of civil rights legislation.

Most Southerners seem to believe nothing will come of talk about "receding" from the Democratic national party. It's just maneuvering, they said, in an effort to make President Truman "see the light."

If anything is done along this line, one congressman said, it must be on in the states — not in Washington.

A letter which Rep. Harris wrote to the president may have been a factor in bringing White House denial that it is planning a compromise move.

Harris told Mr. Truman a "reported concession" likely would only add "insult to injury." Asking a "more practical solution and a better approach" to the vital issues involved, Harris suggested the president "refrain" from further insistence on his program.

The concession report to which Harris referred was to the effect the president would omit the segregation issue but would insist on anti-lynching, anti-poll tax and FEPC legislation.

The day after Harris sent his letter and finalizing a vast amount of encouraging self-help is going forward in the sixteen counties which are involved in the Marshall plan. It's almost unfair to mention any one county as an example, but Britain provides a good illustration.

On top of the force austerity program under which the country has continued to live since the war — and I mean here, for I had first-hand experience of it — the Socialist government has called for further drastic measures. In order to combat inflation, Sir Stafford Cripps, chancellor of the exchequer and minister of economic affairs, has asked the country to accept voluntary controls to keep down not only profits but wages.

Sir Stafford was grim and blunt as he made an appeal in the House of Commons for this voluntary action. And he didn't stop with an appeal, he warned that compulsion might have to be employed. He put it this way:

"When we take them voluntary measures in a democratic way by the choice of the people, we are doing the suggestion of them by force? Unless we exercise restraint, the sheer facts of the case will demand compulsion, which this government is anxious to avoid."

The British press in commenting on the bold front generally agreed that now is the time for a united effort by the nation.

Meanwhile the U. S. State Department has called attention to the holding of a conference by the 16 nations concerned with the Marshall plan. This is said to mean that the meeting probably will be held in March. As an indication of the difficulties ahead, American officials expect that the Communists will wage new drives in France and Italy during March and April.

There are hard times ahead but on the whole there would seem to be no reason for extreme pessimism, especially since western Europe is determined on pulling through.

Robbins Hearing Definitely Set for Feb. 23

Clinton, Feb. 16 (AP)—Trial of Lonnie A. Robbins and two other persons charged with first degree murder in the New Year's Eve death of Robbins' bride today was definitely set for 9 a. m. Feb. 23. The date was set by Van Buren County Circuit Judge Garner Fraser at a pre-trial conference here today.

Besides Robbins, 49, the defendant, are 71-year-old Mrs. Jewel Robbins, and their former hired man, Henry Petty, 50. All appeared before Judge Fraser today and announced they had obtained counsel. Their attorneys are J. P. Koone, former prosecuting attorney and circuit judge, and N. J. Henley, Marshall, Ark.

Robbins married Mrs. Sadie Sue Dudley, 34, Abilene, Tex., widow, at Abilene last Christmas Day. The bride died a few hours after arriving at Robbins' farm home near Clinton. An autopsy showed she died of poisoning.

Sheriff Doyce Casinger said he had been told by Robbins, who was recovered from Robbins, who also was found to have $500 concealed in a secret pocket in his underwear. Robbins has maintained, however, that he knows nothing of the money his bride was said to have possessed.

Robbins was declared sane following examination at the State Hospital in Little Rock.

Bond for the elderly Mrs. Robbins was set at $5,000.

Housewife Fast Against High Prices

Chicago, Feb. 16 (UP)—Mrs. Ruth Berbes, 22, wrinkled her pretty nose as she gazed distastefully at the single slice of bread and the glass of milk on the table before her.

"That's my breakfast," she said. "Gosh, how I'd like a couple of eggs and a thick slice of fried ham."

Mrs. Berbes is emulating her hero, the late Mahatma K. Gandhi, by fasting to protest the high cost of living. She had vowed that she will eat only five slices of bread and three glasses of milk each day for two weeks.

Mrs. Berbes, brown-haired and attractive, works as a soda fountain clerk in addition to her duties as a housewife. She is continuing to work while fasting but she said that food at the soda fountain makes her mighty hungry.

She began fasting last Thursday. "Anyway, I'd be saving money. So that's why I stopped eating," she said.

At present, she said, rural electric power rates are asking for a total of $250,000,000 — or more than the budget would allow. Other requests are still to come.

"There's a need for expansion in this field," he said. "I think we should provide the funds."

Proposes Plan to Stave Off Recession

New York, Feb. 16 (AP)—Ches-ter Bowles, former OPA administrator, today proposed an extensive federal program which he said "can modify, to a major extent, the recession which our past mistakes have made inevitable."

"During the last few weeks," he told the United States Conference of Mayors, "we have all witnessed what may be the beginning of the second cycle of the old dismal cycle of economic boom and bust."

The prices of grains have dropped sharply, and so have the prices of many securities. It is possible, of course, that the commodity markets will recover and that confidence will be temporarily restored.

But, Bowles added: "There is one fact that we must all face squarely: We could not possibly expect that our economy could be subjected to the wholly unnecessary inflation of the last year and a half without eventually paying the piper."

"Sometime in the not too distant future — if it has not already started — we will find ourselves moving into a depression of some sort."

Stating that there now are many controls which make an exact duplication of the 1929 depression unlikely, Bowles said that nevertheless "an extremely serious situation can develop."

"Even though the number of unemployed reaches only six or eight million — roughly half the number of 1932 — the effects throughout the world would be drastic."

To cushion another depression, Bowles proposed the following nine-point program "based on our experience in the past":

1. "Cut cuts all along the line of the time to cut taxes is when purchasing power is beginning to dry up."

2. "An all-out program of slum clearance and housing," outlining 400,000 homes a year.

3. Continue rent controls "for at least another year or two."

4. Broaden social security payments to include self-employed, domestic help and farm workers.

5. Enact a national health insurance plan.

6. "Once a recession begins, we should move ahead promptly with our plans for the development of the Missouri Valley Authority, St. Lawrence Valley Authority, and for similar developments on the other major rivers."

7. "An all-out program for the building of schools . . . we should extend the principle of our G. I. Bill of Rights to enable all of our young people who are intellectually qualified to go to college."

8. Increase minimum wages from 40 to "at least" 75 cents an hour.

9. "Pass the European recovery program without crippling amendments as rapidly as possible."

He emphasized that "a recession of some kind will sooner or later be inevitable, and, when it comes, Congress and the administration must take strong leadership if we are to keep it from deteriorating into a serious economic collapse."

In a message to the mayors of 250 U. S. cities yesterday, President Truman urged congressional curbs on inflation and enactment of a long-range housing bill.

Hight Cost of Living Hits Suddenly atrobe, Pa., Feb. 16 (UP)—The high cost of living caught up with Andrew Zavada, a 348-week factory worker, today. He had to stretch the family budget to include the new quadruplets his wife presented to him.

The four babies, three girls and a boy, were born two months early by Caesarean operation yesterday to Mrs. Barbara Zavada, 25, of Dorothy, Pa. Hospital authorities said both children and mother were in good condition.

Zavada, 35, stayed home from his job as inspector and packer at the atrobe Die Casting Company today. He said he had to rest up from the 40 hours he spent without sleep prior to the birth of the children.

The Zavadas were warned by X-rays in December to expect quadruplets.

John Michael Zavada, the first born, arrived at 1:31 a. m. He weighed 3 1/2 pounds. The three girls, described as identical triplets, were born one minute apart, Anna Mary, 3 3/4 pounds, Barbara Rose, 3 1/4 pounds, and Bernadette Elizabeth, 3 pounds.

The quadruplets were placed in four incubators donated by the Electric Heat Tank Corp. Each was fed a thimbleful of dextrose and water.

Two pints of blood were given to the mother "to improve her general condition," but she was reported in no danger.

Dr. J. Wiley Hartman, the Zavada's family doctor, directed the delivery and two Pittsburgh obstetricians, Dr. Paul Titus and Dr. James L. Royal, performed the surgery.

"The babies have a good chance of survival," Dr. Hartman said.

One-half hour after they were born, the babies were christened by the Rev. Theodore Hodokay, of St. Mark's Greek Catholic church, who wore a white gauze mask while performing the ceremony in the hospital.

Mrs. Zavada has one other child, a five-year old boy, by a previous marriage. She married Zavada in August, 1940, two years after her first husband, Harold Dale McBryer, was killed in the invasion of France.

In addition to worrying over his family's budget, Zavada has a housing shortage. The family has been living in a five-room duplex apartment.

"But I'm not worried," Zavada
